

HOUSE OF THE TEMPLE

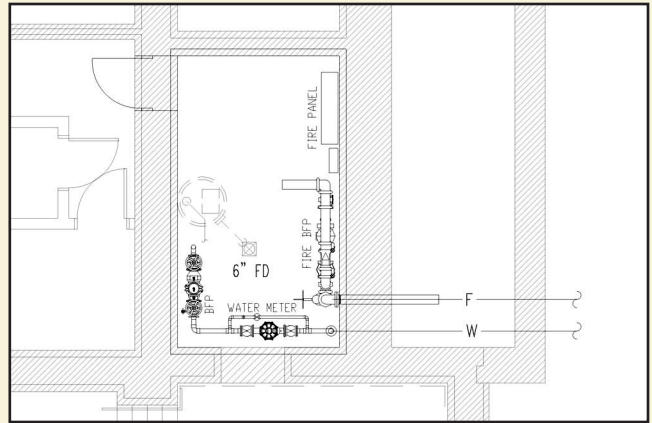

• Renovation Update for December 2011 •

DURING DECEMBER 2011, the Renovation Team focused on incoming water service for domestic and fire protection as well as sanitary and storm connections to the sewer system. While the city has combined sewer systems in the street, discharge from the building to the city system must be separate. Additionally, we have identified the work for the coming year culminating with a set of documents to submit for permit by the end of 2012. Work on the earthquake response continues inside the building with repairs to the leather transom and granite columns.

Sean Graystone and Allyn Kilscheimer, structural engineer, plan for insertion of the new egress stair in the northwest corner of the building, replacing the spiral stair.

Proposed layout of incoming water service for domestic and fire suppression at the northwest corner of the basement level. As the design continues, this layout will be modified to accommodate all of the requirements of a fully modernized building.

The August earthquake dislodged rays of the glory on the west side of the Temple Room. While this situation was attributed to the earthquake, the other rays of the glory have become loose and attachments have failed due to corrosion and failure at the mechanical connections.

The ray was reattached to the support using a tap and screw to mechanically fasten the ray to its support. While the circumstances were unexpected, the opportunity to access and review the condition of the ray attachments is helpful in planning for the future refurbishment.
